

Final UXR Conference 2020 Update Regarding COVID-19

Wednesday March 18, 2020

TL;DR The UXR Collective team is thrilled to announce the transition of our in-person event UXR Conference 2020 to our new, remote-only event UXR Conference Anywhere 2020. UXR Conference Anywhere 2020 will be held on Thursday June 25 and Friday June 26, 2020 with all of the same speakers and sponsors as UXR Conference 2020, and additional remote-friendly networking programs. Please read the full statement below.

Over the past few weeks, the COVID-19 pandemic has changed dramatically for the worse. The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention has recommended no gatherings of over 250 people, the Canadian and U.S. authorities have closed the border to all non-essential travel, and governments and businesses around the world are taking this crisis extremely seriously.

That's why we're announcing the transition of UXR Conference 2020 to UXR Conference Anywhere 2020, a fully online version of our former in-person event.

We're excited about UXR Conference Anywhere 2020 for a few reasons. First, it means that all of the great content we wanted to share during UXR Conference 2020 will still be shared. Second, we expect this online event to reach far more folks now that we are no longer confined by physical space. And third, we can guarantee the health and safety of all our participants.

We would like to take this time to thank all of our speakers and sponsors for their unwavering support during these unprecedented times. We would also like to thank you, our research community, for your patience with us as we navigate this new and uncharted territory.

For more information about UXR Conference Anywhere 2020, please visit uxrconference.com.

Thank you and stay safe,

Alec Levin, Maggi Mitchell, and the entire UXR Collective team

